VOICE OF THE NEW NATIONAL FRONT

VIOLENCE 'JUSTIFIED' IN PURSUIT OF CHANGE

Poll shows growing radical trend among British youth

"WHAT HAS DEMOCRACY DONE FOR US?"

Young Britons without work and without future. They have little faith in the system.

THE USE OF VIOLENCE is justified in pursuit of political change in Britain. That was the verdict of nearly half of the unemployed young people recently interviewed in an opinion poll conducted by MORI (Market Opinion & Research International). In fact more of those interviewed favoured violence than opposed it — 44 per-cent as against 41 per-cent, with 15 per-cent being non-committal.

No doubt these opinions will shock many people who are used to believing that Britain is a land of political moderation — but in fact they should cause no great surprise. In recent years Britain's youth has been increasingly radicalised by the evidence of the breakdown of the established political and economic system. 3 million — a quarter of them young — are now on the dole, and the system shows no signs of being able to provide them either with work or hope. They see the system as having failed — and in that at least they are right.

Probably the majority of those ready to justify violent methods of change are influenced more by the far left than the radical right — at least for the moment.

What the poll does show is that a great many young folk, whether at the moment they follow the left or the right, marxism or nationalism, are disillusioned with liberal democracy and the old and established political institutions.

One overriding reason for this is that these young people see the so-called 'democratic' system as nothing but a fraud. Theoretically 'democracy' puts power in the hands of the people. But in practice the people have scarcely any real power at all. Everything is controlled by an oligarchy of money and privilege, which has its hands on the news media and instructs the people how to vote.

Theoretically 'democracy' allows us freedom of speech. But in practice no such freedom exists for those who pose a real challenge to the system. They are excluded from television and from a voice in the popular press. They are banned from using halls for public meetings and banned from the streets under the Public Order Act. 'Democracy' is just another name for hypocrisy — it claims to stand for 'tolerance' of dissenting viewpoints but in reality the Establishment is jealously intolerant of all those who seriously oppose it, and has at its hand all the means of suppression that we associate with totalitarian states.

No wonder that a great many young people, seeing the humbug and the fraud that lie behind the 'democratic' system and recognising that those who hold the real power are determined to hang onto that power at all costs, are coming to believe that illegality is justified. It is justified when you want to change society and when that society has deprived you of nearly all the proper facilities to pursue change by lawful means.

We are opposed to violence as a means of bringing about the changes that we want to see in society, not for any moral reasons, but only because it will not work. We cannot challenge the establishment by the use of force because the establishment is too strong for us. If we used force against it we would be easily crushed.

While this position prevails, we must work for the changes we seek by peaceful and lawful methods, however difficult this may be and however unjustly the system may operate to deprive us of our supposed 'rights'.

But at least we have the satisfaction of seeing that a very large number of young people in this country see the system for what it is and are not fooled by its claim to 'legitimacy' merely because it rests on the votes of the people.

They see 'democracy' for what it is — a squalid racket designed to keep its manipulators in power for perpetuity.

They recognise, as we do, that the racket must be ended. And by all means necessary.

JOB FOR THE YOUNG

AFTER much agitation by the 'wets' in her Cabinet, Mrs. Thatcher recently announced that the Government is to introduce a new scheme to reduce youth unemployment. Like so many schemes introduced by governments, this one will fail because it is designed to silence critics rather than to produce results.

The new scheme typifies the lack of realism which pervades the thinking of most politicians. Basically, it will provide financial inducements to encourage employers to take on school leavers and to persuade those youngsters unable to find jobs to stay at school. In addition, the Government intends setting up 'Information Technology Centres' to teach young people computer and electronic skills.

It is obvious to anyone with an iota of common sense that Mrs. Thatcher's latest brainchild will provide no cure for Britain's high level of youth unemployment — a situation which has been greatly exacerbated by her crazy economic policies. Providing employers with cash incentives to persuade them to take on youngsters will simply encourage inefficient and overmanned businesses to become even more inefficient and overmanned, while the provision of training programmes for youngsters (training them for what?) will merely shelve the problem a couple of years, with no guarantee that there will be any extra jobs at the end of that time.

The location of Mrs. Thatcher's 'Information Technology Centres' in our riot-torn inner cities indicates how her mind is working. She has obviously been persuaded that the rioting by Blacks this summer was caused by unemployment. In fact, young Blacks suffer far less unemployment than is generally supposed — as an article in this issue explains. That this is so is also confirmed by the absence of riots in areas like the North East and South West, where unemployment is extremely high, but Blacks relatively few in number.

Clearly, Mrs. Thatcher has been frightened into introducing this half-baked scheme; it will do nothing to improve the lot of our own youngsters or to lessen Britain's rapidly worsening economic plight.

When will the politicians realise that in this age of increasing automation there are going to be fewer jobs? The best way to help youngsters find jobs is to create job sharing by means of shorter working hours and earlier retirement for everyone. The vastly increased productivity made possible by the new technologies makes it quite feasible to maintain, or even increase, wage levels despite reduced working hours.

In a sane society increased leisure and higher living standards should be the reward for technological progress. Unfortunately, such a reward will never be ours so long as governments apply unworkable palliatives to urgent problems, and are unwilling to stop the never-ceasing flood of immigrants into our midst.

THE HOME OFFICE has announced that 16,550 immigrants were settled in Britain during the second quarter of this year. This brings the total number of immigrants who came to Britain during the first half of 1981 to 31,450.

ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER Wilford Gibson of the London Metropolitan Police has told the Scarman Inquiry that the involvement of Blacks in violent street crime in Brixton was of "tremendous concern" to the police.

THREE ISRAELIS have been arrested by French police following a knife attack they made on three Britons travelling on a train in Southern France. The Britons were detained in hospital.

THE SALVATION ARMY has withdrawn from the World Council of Churches after Philip Potter, the WCC's £16,000 Secretary-General, announced that the Council would continue giving aid to SWAPO, the terrorist group operating in South-West Africa. The SA is also reported to be concerned because the WCC has made grants of £60,000 to the Institute of Race Relations, the Race Today Collective and the Southall Youth Movement. The WCC has made the grants to "combat racism in Britain."

DEMONSTRATORS, most of them coloured, chanted outside Bradford's Magistrates' Court in support of members of the United Black Youth League who were charged with conspiring to attack the police, skinheads and commercial premises with petrol bombs.

THE GLC has advertised for a 'Head of Police Support Unit' at a salary of £20,000. The function of the person appointed will be to investigate allegations of "racial harassment" made against police officers.

BLACKS AND UNEMPLOYMENT: THE FACTS

New Frontier takes a look behind the official smokescreen

FIGURES recently issued by the Department of Employment (DoE) flatly contradict statements made by leading politicians and spokesmen of the Race Relations Industry who claim that high levels of unemployment among young Blacks is the principal cause of the rioting which has plagued many of our cities during the past few months.

Politicians, functionaries of bodies like the DoE, the Manpower Services Commission and the Home Office, multiracialists and self-appointed 'leaders' of immigrant associations frequently tell us that young Blacks get a raw deal and have much greater difficulty finding jobs than Whites of the same age. The solution, they suggest, is to introduce 'reverse discrimination' — i.e. discrimination in favour of Blacks at the expense of Whites — as already practised by some Labour Councils.

Even Government spokesmen are on record as saying that the 'ethnic minorities' — a term which is the official euphemism for Blacks — are much more adversely affected by the recession than the rest of the population. The DoE's journal, Employment Gazette, recently reported that Employment Minister Lord Gowrie told the Bedford Community Relations Association that young people from the 'ethnic minorities' were particularly badly affected by unemployment; and a Home Office publication entitled Ethnic Minorities in Britain states that despite legislation against racial discrimination in employment, unemployment among 'ethnic minorities' is "disproportionately high".

Fortunately for those who are interested in establishing the truth concerning unemployment among Blacks, the left hand seldom knows what the right hand is doing in Government departments and official bodies. Hence the DoE frequently publishes information that disperses the official smoke screen that surrounds the disastrous consequences that large-scale immigration is having on the prospects of young Whites; and also effectively demolishes propaganda disseminated by the multiracialists. (Presumably, Whitehall mandarins do not expect their published statistics to be so closely scrutinised as they are by New Frontier!)

MRS. THATCHER Helping to keep alive myth that unemployment is cause of riots.

Every year, the DoE publishes unemployment figures by age groups for 'minority group workers' — another euphemism — in Great Britain (less Liverpool and three other areas excluded for reasons best known to the DoE). The figures make very interesting reading.

For example, we are told that 190,800 under-18s were unemployed last January, but that only 6,780 Blacks in the age group were unemployed in the following month. Assuming that these figures are correct and that no vast changes took place between January and February, the number of Blacks unemployed in the age group was approximately 3.5% of the total. Of further interest is the fact that at the same time only 4,072 West Indians in the age group were unemployed. So much for the frequent claims that West Indian youngsters are particularly 'disadvantaged'!

Every quarter, the DoE also publishes unemployment figures for all age groups in Great Britain (once again excluding Liverpool and the three unspecified areas). The figures released for the 14th of May, 1981, show that on that date only 101,299 'minority group workers' were unemployed. On the same day the DoE tells us that 2,456,900 people in Britain were unemployed. Thus unemployed Blacks accounted for only 4.12% of those out of work.

RACE INDUSTRY CLAIMS REFUTED

The above-quoted figures utterly refute claims made by spokesmen of the Race Relations Industry that unemployment among Blacks is disproportionately high; they also convincingly silence those who pretend that misbehaviour by Blacks is caused by unemployment.

The 1981 Census established that 54,129,000 people now live in Britain; but because the Census specifically excluded questions relating to a person's origin, it is not possible to determine how many Blacks are living here. In 1979 the Office of Population Censuses & Surveys claimed that 2,013,000 Blacks lived here, but this figure excluded second and third generation Blacks born in Britain and did not take into account the large number of illegal immigrants living here. Taking these facts into consideration it seems probable that today Britain's Black population is somewhere in the region of 3 million, or 5.5% of the total population.

Now since, as we have just shown, Blacks account for about

YOUR LETTERS

Sir,—As a long-time member of the Merseyside Police I wish to thank the New National Front for supporting us after the recent riots.

It was disgraceful that the authorities prevented you from demonstrating your support but allowed those who wished to attack us to demonstrate with impunity. The fact that the NNF was the only body of people prepared to risk life and limb in support of us and the Rule of Law has not gone unnoticed by many of my colleagues. Thank you.

Police Constable, Toxteth.

Sir,—I was dismayed that members of the British Movement were invited to attend the Nationalist Unity Rally held in London last month.

The BM is not a political movement but a gang whose sole aim is to commit violence against foreigners. Its members waste time and energy strutting about in an aggressive manner and do great harm to the Nationalist Cause in Britain. Allowing them to associate with us is bound to jeopardise the NNF's hard-won reputation and growing support.

For the good of Britain, the BM, together with some other supposedly 'Nationalist' groups, should dissolve itself and members should join the NNF as individuals, providing that they are prepared to accept our codes of conduct and behaviour. Those who are not prepared to abide by our standards of discipline should be strictly excluded from participating in our activities.

Miss Christine Yianni, London, N16.

(Editor's Note: We believe that there are good (and bad) elements in all the Nationalist groups, and indeed, all political parties. The New National Front welcomes all sincere Nationalists who are prepared to dedicate themselves to British Nationalism. Miss Yianni may rest assured that all those who do not match up to our ideals and standards will be excluded from membership of the NNF.)

JAPAN NOW WORLD'S NO. 1 CAR MAKER

Growth story provides vital lessons for Britain but our politicians will not learn them.

JAPAN has now overtaken the United States as the world's leading manufacturer of motor cars. Last year 7,038,000 cars rolled off the Jap assembly lines, while 6,376,000 came out of American factories.

Tory economists will no doubt claim that for Britain to compete effectively against the Japs we must reduce state involvement in our motor industry and subject ourselves increasingly to 'free market' forces.

But in fact they are quite wrong in this diagnosis, for the enormous success of the Japanese motor industry has very little to do with such prescriptions.

PLAN

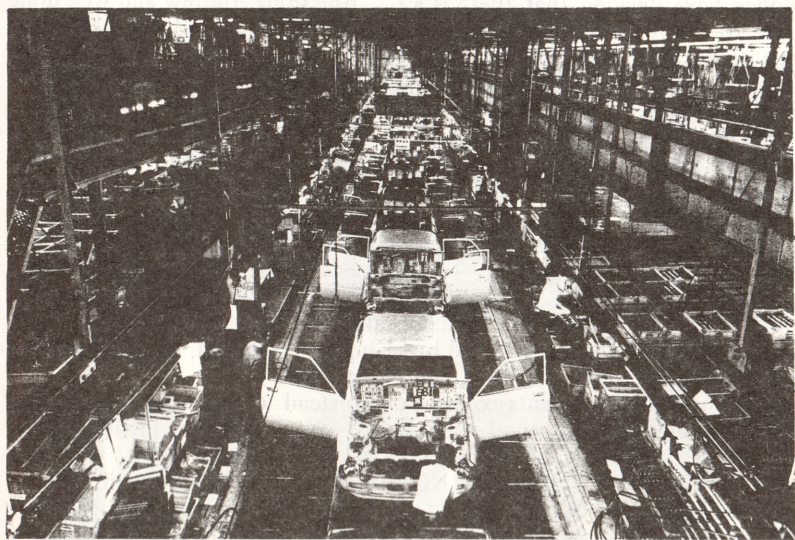

The growth of the Japanese motor industry is due first of all to the fact that 20 years ago the Japanese Government initiated a careful study of the world car market and its likely development in the two decades to follow. It then embarked upon a deliberate plan for the building of a native Japanese industry that would be adapted to that market. In this whole development there has been a close partnership between private enterprise and the state. Nothing has been left to 'free market' forces; everything has been planned.

And central to the plan is that foreign cars should be kept out of the Japanese home market, except for just a token number. Today, while Japan exports 3,947,000 cars to the rest of the world, she imports 46,000 in return (the figures for 1980).

There are no 'official' barriers to imported cars in Japan, but in effect foreigners find it enormously hard to get a foothold into the market. One reason for this is the intense nationalism of the Japanese motorist: he considers it unpatriotic not to support his own motor industry.

TALKING POINTS

by FRONTIERSMAN

GAY LONDON COUNCIL

It is reported that former Liberal Leader Jeremy Thorpe has applied for a £22,000-a-year post as a 'race relations adviser' advertised by the Greater London Council. No doubt Mr. Thorpe has been encouraged to apply for this lucrative job by the support for 'gays' recently expressed by Ken Livingstone, the GLC's Marxist boss. I dare say that Thorpe stands as good a chance of landing this plum sinecure as anyone, but it is my opinion that anyone with a reputation as unsavoury as his, is not a fit person to hold any public post, however unnecessary or futile that post may be.

LOUD-MOUTHED TED

No sooner had Edward Heath repaid the hospitality of South Africa's Whites by condemning them in a speech he gave in Johannesburg when the highly efficient South African Army managed to kill two Russian Lieutenant-Colonels and capture a Sergeant-Major who were aiding SWAPO guerrillas in Angola to wage war in South-West Africa. Mr. Heath must have wished that he had kept his big mouth shut. Some people never learn!

CLANGER

Mention of Mr. Heath reminds me of the great pleasure I had on learning that the absurd 'Dimpleby Lecture' for 1981 had to be postponed after the BBC had dropped a clanger of monumental proportions by inviting five speakers to give the lecture! Would that this annual folly were permanently discontinued! Those invited to give the lecture were: Robert McNamara, Bilderberger and former president of the World Bank; Edward Heath, failed politician who now consoles himself by pretending that he is a 'statesman' and pontificating on such subjects as South Africa; Willi Brandt (real name Frahm), ex-Communist who was wanted for murder in pre-war Germany; Professor E. P. Thompson, left-wing historian and veteran ban-the-bomber; and Dr. John Rae, 'progressive' headmaster of Westminster School. I don't think that readers of New Frontier will feel particularly aggrieved by the absence of these rather self-important people from their TV screens!

MANDATORY BLACKS

Not content with appointing Blacks to important posts in the professions and other walks of life, the multiracialists are determined to impose them on us in our own homes. It is now customary for the mandatory Black to appear in TV soap operas and potboilers. Usually Blacks are depicted as very superior personages, and even when given lowly roles they are a cut above the Whites with whom they appear — like Mac, the black garage-hand in Crossroads, who is an intellectual giant when compared to Benny, the demented simpleton.

However, Blacks are no longer confined to soap operas and the like. For some time the news on ITV has been read by Trevor MacDonald, and now a Bermudan, Miss Moira Stuart, is to read it on BBC. What those who control TV fail to understand is that if they continue to use the box as a means of thrusting unwelcome aliens into our sitting rooms, we shall switch the confounded thing off.

ONE MAN, ONE VOTE

Little more than a year after Rhodesia sadly became 'Zimbabwe', Prime Minister Mugabe has announced plans to make the country a one-party state, despite the 'Lancaster House Agreement' and assurances from Lords Carrington and Soames that Mugabe was a 'democrat'. As Ian Smith used to say: "One man, one vote — once!"

LUNATIC AT LARGE

In the unlikely event of escaped Broadmoor double-killer, Alan Reeve, being recaptured, we may expect a concerted campaign to secure his release.

After all, he has excellent credentials and should qualify as a Cabinet Minister, clergyman or race relations practitioner with little difficulty. We are told that he is a 'student' of that hot-bed of subversion known as the Open University, he describes himself as a Maoist, and he has a girlfriend — anything is allowed in the Mad House these days! — who, it is reported, is a convicted member of the so-called Anti-Nazi League. Yes, Mr. Reeve is destined for great things!

IMPARTIAL JUDGMENT?

One of the most ludicrous spectacles for a long time was the sight of Lord Scarman dangling a three-year-old negro child on his knees at a cricket match between a Brixton-West Indian team and the Brixton police. What on earth has happened to our country when an eminent member of the judiciary can be seen in such a ridiculous and fawning posture? What indeed?

BOYCOTTING BOYCOTT!

What a pleasant change it was to be able to watch this season's cricket without our eardrums being assailed by clinking beer cans, steel drums and other manifestations of the jungle. However, the season was rather marred by the report that the Indian Government will cancel the England team's tour of that country unless Geoff Boycott gives a public assurance that he will never again play in South Africa. I hope Mr. Boycott tells the Indians to go to blazes. If the Indians, West Indians or Pakistanis retaliate by refusing to tour England so be it. Indeed, good riddance — I would rather see the great Lillee bowling to Boycott or Botham any day. And we can always invite the South Africans here in their stead!

ARMING THE POLICE?

I'm pleased that the Government has chosen Marconi's 'Project 7525' heavy-weight torpedo for the Royal Navy in preference to the American Adcap torpedo — would that they had selected a British-built weapon system instead of the enormously expensive American Trident. But I was rather intrigued by newspaper reports that the torpedo was chosen because, amongst other things, it is built on Merseyside and "Ministers had the riots in mind" when they made their choice. Does this mean that the Government is contemplating arming the Merseyside Police with heavyweight torpedoes instead of batons so that they can deal more effectively with riotous aliens? Anyway, it's certainly a novel idea!

Another reason is the extremely possible, first by the national planning for a highly modernised industry, and secondly by the protective walls behind which this modernisation has proceeded.

LESSONS

No doubt Japanese cars commend themselves to Japanese motorists for other reasons than nationalism. They are better produced and more competitive.

But so they should be when the Japanese motor industry is so successful and so well equipped. These advantages have only become

In the Jap success are valuable lessons which we in Britain should learn and apply in the rebuilding of our own motor industry. Sadly, it is unlikely that we shall do so — except in the improbable event of a Tory or Labour government adopting New National Front policies of planning and protection for the British motor car.

Northampton hit by race violence

ALTHOUGH New Frontier has frequently devoted considerable space to racial violence in some of our larger cities, readers must not imagine these are the only places to experience such horrifying manifestations of the 'multiracial society'.

Racial violence very often flares up in our smaller towns, and we have even had reports of such incidents occurring in rural areas. Northampton is one town that recently suffered from a mini-riot that marred the town's annual carnival.

After the carnival was over, a group of 100 black youths terrorised the townsfolk, including women and children, as they went on the rampage through the town centre. The Blacks attacked the public and the police. One police sergeant was kicked in the mouth, and a police panda car was damaged.

These ugly scenes were followed some days later by skirmishes between white and black youths in the town's Grosvenor Shopping Centre. It seems that the white youths, incensed by incessant attacks made on them by Blacks during previous months, finally took the law into their own hands. New Frontier deplores reprisals of this sort but considers them understandable — indeed, an inevitable consequence of the multiracialist policies of successive governments.

Meanwhile, unemployed black youth leader, Trevor Hall, warned Northampton's Council that if it terminated the lease on the town's Matta Fancata Centre for black youths, they would "accumulate in the Grosvenor Centre" and there would be racial uproar in the town. This scarcely-veiled threat resulted in an announcement that the Manpower Services Commission was considering giving the Centre a grant of £3,000. "It will save us," said Mr. Hall.

COMMON MARKET COMMENT

ANOTHER CON TRICK

THE unedifying power struggle for the deputy leadership of the Labour Party has once again brought to the fore arguments about Britain's membership of the European Economic Community. Few people, however, will be fooled by the assault on Britain's membership that is currently being made by two of the three contenders for power in the Party. We have heard it all before.

Over the years, the British Left has shamefully hoodwinked the public, and we suspect that it is quite prepared to do so again if there is any political advantage to be gained. Ever since the days of Hugh Gaitskell, who sat on the EEC fence waiting to see which way to jump, the Left has regarded the EEC issue purely in terms of winning votes and acquiring public favour: opposing Britain's membership when the EEC's unpopularity has been high; supporting it when pro-EEC publicity has temporarily succeeded in shifting public opinion in its favour.

The Left's fluctuating attitude towards EEC membership descended to its nadir of cynicism at the time of Harold Wilson's phoney Referendum in 1975. Having won the second election in 1974 by promising to hold the Referendum — a ruse which many voters genuinely believed to indicate Labour's serious intention to disentangle Britain from the EEC — Wilson promptly decided to 'renegotiate' Britain's membership. He then spent vast sums of public money persuading the voters to say "Yes" to Britain remaining shackled to the European imbroglio. Now, more than six years later, Messrs. Wedgwood Benn and Silkin — neither of whom saw fit to make the EEC a resigning matter at the time of Wilson's perfidy — are emulating Wilson by pretending that they, too, genuinely oppose Britain's continued membership of the EEC.

BENN AND SILKIN
Getting on anti-EEC bandwagon.

With these facts in mind, we suspect that the anti-EEC stance adopted by Labour's would-be leaders is simply a device designed to enable them and their Party to scramble back into power. We believe that once they have achieved their aim, their loudly-proclaimed opposition to Britain's involvement with the EEC will evaporate as it has done before.

ANOTHER JUNKET

A BELGIAN member of the European Parliament has tabled a motion urging cuts in the Parliament's £2 million travel budget. This news came just as 17 'Euro-MPs' and the wives of 10 of them were about to embark on a 10-day visit to Peking. Also included in the party were 12 officials and three journalists. New Frontier has drawn attention to Euro-junkets before and we make no apology for doing so again. We would like to know what China has got to do with the EEC, and why is it necessary for wives to go on these junkets?

NEW NATIONAL FRONT MAKES MORE GAINS

THE NEW NATIONAL FRONT continues to gain strength in its drive to achieve the unification of British nationalists. Last month some significant progress was made in a number of areas.

Party Leader John Tyndall visited Kidderminster on September 13th and addressed an enthusiastic meeting of nationalists mainly from the Worcestershire area. As a result of the meeting new recruits were won to the local branch, largely at the expense of the now nearly defunct 'British Democratic Party', a splinter from the old NF. It was made very clear during the meeting that these former members would never have come back to the old Front under its present leadership. There is a strong possibility also that as a result of the meeting a new group will be formed in nearby Worcester.

Mr. Tyndall then travelled to

JOHN TYNDALL SPEAKS

Leeds, where he addressed a gathering of about 50 organised by the local NNF branch. As a result of this meeting a number of the hitherto uncommitted have said they will join, including some who dropped out of the old NF in 1979.

North Western Organiser John Green reports that a new group has the case of Kidderminster, converts from the 'British Democratic Party'.

Also during the month a small active group was formed in Wellingborough, Northants.

Recently, the New NF won over two important new recruits. One of these was Martin Braithwaite, who was a leading organiser in West and the party.

Also joining recently has been Tony Caradas, previously the South London Regional Organiser of the old National Front. In notifying the New NF of his support Mr. Caradas wrote a letter to John Tyndall part of which we reproduce on this page.

NNF highly active in S.W. England

ONE of the most successful NNF regions in recent months has been the South-West Region. Under the inspired leadership of men like Regional Organiser Len Bearsford-Walker and Activities Organiser Derek Merry, ably supported by Cornish activists Tom Stone, Malcolm Swingle and many others, the NNF has become a force to be reckoned with in the Far West — as many leading Establishment politicians in the West Country are learning to their cost!

Perhaps the most encouraging development in the West has been the participation of many of the younger generation in NNF activities. Particularly deserving mention is Andrew Perrin, Young Nationalist Organiser for the South-West, who did much to make the recent Plymouth Rally the success that it undoubtedly was. We are told that young Andrew is an "indefatigable activist who is always to the fore wherever the action is."

Well done Andrew and well done South-West Region! We hope that some of our other Regions will try and emulate your efforts!

Letter to John Tyndall

Dear Mr. Tyndall,

I am writing in regard to the recent nationalist meeting. May I say how glad I was to hear your speech. It proved to me that there's still hope for a nationalist party in this country. And to hear you say you are prepared to get together with 99 per-cent of the Front pleased me even more.

As you probably know, I have stayed with the National Front and worked hard in building it up. I rose quickly to become Regional Organiser and chief national steward of the party. I thought I was right in staying with the party and you were wrong. I even went round to different meetings to speak against you. I realise now how wrong I was but I thought at the time that the National Front, and not the New National Front was the right party to stay with.

I knew Martin Webster was a poof but I could not believe the party was run just on his say-so. I put my trust in the National Front Directorate. I have since realised what a mistake that was. The higher I rose in the party, the more I realised that Webster pulled the strings.

I went to the Chairman of the party to try to get Webster dismissed but he would not take any notice of me. I then went to one Directorate member after another and four of them said something should be done about Webster but none of them would do anything about it through fear of getting thrown out themselves.

I therefore resigned and said I would no longer work for a party of gutless wonders and poofs. I realise how you must have felt, John, and realise that you were right. We must all work hard to get rid of Webster.

I hope we can all get together soon.

Yours sincerely,
Tony Caradas.

now been formed in Wallasey, Merseyside, which will provide extra support to the already established Liverpool branch — now making excellent progress under the energetic leadership of Stephen Farrell. Many of those comprising the new Wallasey group are, as in

Lively conference and rally in London

THE NEW NATIONAL FRONT staged a lively and interesting conference in London on September 5th, followed by a rousing rally on the theme 'Whites unite or go under!'

The conference was devoted to a series of talks and discussion on the subjects of propaganda, activities and finally party strategy for the 1980s. A most interesting part of the activities period was a talk by South Western Activities Organiser Derek Merry on how he organised the massive NNF rally in Plymouth in July.

The rally was addressed by Capt. Kenneth McKilliam, Len Bearsford Walker, Derek Merry, guest speaker Ray Hill and NNF Chairman John Tyndall and ended in great enthusiasm with a collection of £400. David Bruce chaired the meeting and raised the collection.

Due to the necessity for the meeting to be called at unusually short notice, the attendance was smaller than would normally have been expected. Nevertheless just under 200 people were present in the afternoon.

REDS REPORTED

MILTON KEYNES Campaign Against Racism and Fascism has accused Senior Officers of the local police of wasting time by investigating a complaint lodged by Ron Rickcord, local NNF Organiser. The complaint relates to a smear leaflet distributed by CARF during last May's County Council election in which Mr. Rickcord was a candidate. Mr. Rickcord has claimed that CARF contravened the Representation of the People Act.

After taking legal advice, the police have decided that there is a case to answer and have forwarded the papers to the Director of Public Prosecutions.

5.5% of the population, and since, as we demonstrated earlier, they account for only 4.12% of those out of work, it follows that Blacks are proportionately less affected by unemployment than Whites. In other words, the arguments excusing riotous Blacks used by their apologists, like the asinine Lady Simey, are wholly spurious. There is NO excuse for Blacks, of all people, to riot because they are unemployed.

At this juncture it is worth pointing out that in areas like the North East and South West, where unemployment is at its worst but Blacks relatively few in number, there have been no riots. Politicians and highly paid practitioners of the Race Industry please note!

It is about time that politicians and others recognised that rioting, murder, mugging, raping and drug peddling are endemic in those countries from which many of the Blacks in Britain originate. If they doubt that this is so they should take an evening stroll in, say, Kingston, Jamaica, and find out for themselves.

Instead of spending their time and our money justifying or excusing riotous and criminal behaviour by Blacks, British politicians should concern themselves with the plight of large numbers of Whites, especially young Whites, who are unemployed precisely because so many Blacks have been allowed to settle in our country. Failure to recognise the growing and justifiable discontent of our own unemployed youngsters is a factor the politicians ignore at their peril.
